

Frame

Name: Dan Novak --- First time browser

Role: Almost Retired Contractor

Quote: "I just want to know what a slip costs before I hand over my email address"

Info:

Age: 58

Location: Anacortes, WA

Boat: 34 ft cruiser (recently purchased)

Tech and Boat Profiles:

Browses on a tablet

Low tech comfort

Avoids creating accounts without all the info before hand

Compares marinas via their websites and wants to shop around

Goals:

- Compare pricing and amenities without registering
- Understand the $10/ft + $10 electric formula at a glance
- Find the marina's location and contact details quickly and easily

User Icks:

- Compare slip pricing and amenities without registering
- Trying to understand your $10/ft + $10 electric formula at a quick glance.
- Find the marina's location and contact details easily

Frame

Name: John Larson -- Live abroad Client

Role: Fishery Consultant

Quote: "I'll commit long-term if the numbers are steady and my name stays off any public list."

Info:

Age: 45

Location: San Jaun Islands, WA

Boat: 39 ft Workboat (Considering long term moorage)

Tech and Boat Profiles:

Moderate tech comfort

Privacy-conscious

Reads terms and pricing carefully

Relies on VHF and phone communication for marina contact

Goals:

- To verify long-term monthly cost with no hidden fees or surprises
- Find the harbormaster's VHF channel and phone contact before making a committment
- Keeping his personal details private, including on waitlists

User Icks:

- Names being displayed publicly on wait lists or boards
- Vague pricing that changes after signup
- Missing or hard to find contact information

Frame

Name: Henry Morrison

Role: Retired Captain of fishing Boat

Quote: "Just tell me straight: is there a 50-footer open, and if not, how long is the line?"

Info:

Age: 62

Location: Westport, WA

Boat: 48 ft Trawler

Tech and Boat Profiles:

Moderate tech proficiency

Values plain simple and honest information

Checks availability from his desktop

Wants to call the harbormaster when in doubt

Goals:

- See 50 ft slip availability quickly
- Join the waitlist in one step if all are full
- see at a glance were he is on the waillist b before committing

User Icks:

- See 50 ft slip availability immediately
- Join the wait list in one step if slips are full
- See the wait list length before committing

Frame

Name: Priya Sharma ---- New Customer ready to reserve

Role: Project Manager for Software Company

Quote: "If I can't register and reserve in one sitting, I'll find a marina where I can"

Info:

Age: 39

Location: Bellevue, WA

Boat: 26 ft Sailboat

Tech and Boat Profiles:

High tech comfort

Expects e-commerce-smooth flows

Mobile and desktop user

Zero patience for unclear forms

Goals:

- Register, reserve a 26 ft slip, and confirm in one session
- See password rules up front, not after a failed submit
- Stay logged in across pages while completing the reservation

User Icks:

- Forms that reject input without explaining why
- Being asked for more information than necessary
- Losing progress due to session timeouts

Frame

Name: Emily Tran ---- A Returning Customer

Role: Head ER Nurse

Quote: "I already booked two months ago on a night shift. I just need my check-in date, fast"

Info:

Age: 37

Location: Bellevue, WA

Boat: 36 ft Power boat already has a 40 ft slip reserved

Tech and Boat Profiles:

High tech comfort, uses phone

Uses the site in short bursts between shifts

Forgets confirmation details

Deletes old emails routinely

Goals:

- Wants to look up her reservation by email or reservation ID in under a minute
- Review the full summary and cost before confirming
- Cancel or change selections without creating giving herself a negative reputation

User Icks:

- Digging through old emails for a confirmation number
- Confirmations without a clear review step
- Sites that save a reservation before she has chance to approved it